

Speech and Lexical Processing
University of Oxford, Faculty of Linguistics, Philology and Phonetics
Language & Brain Laboratory
August 16-18, 2014

August 15, Friday
19.00	Dinner
August 16, Saturday
9.30	Sheila Blumstein	Brown University	Words and Sounds, Production and Perception, Brain and Behavior: Back to the Future
10.30	Coffee/Tea
11.00	Allard Jongman	University of Kansas	Linking acoustics and perception: Insights from behavioral and computational approaches
12.00	Shari Baum	McGill University	Sensorimotor integration in speech: Studies of adaptation to auditory perturbations
13.00	Lunch
14.30	Joan Sereno	University of Kansas	Processing variability: Context effects, L1-L2 interactions, and indexical information
15.30	Rachel Theodore	University of Connecticut	Talker-specificity effects in spoken language processing: Now you see them, now you don't
16.00	Coffee/Tea
17.00	Aditi Lahiri, Allison Wetterlin, Adam Roberts	University of Oxford	All features great and small
19.00	Dinner
August 17, Sunday
10.00	Jack Ryalls	University of Central Florida	Foreign Accent Syndrome: Is there a Common Pattern?
11.00	Tea/Coffee
11.30	Eiling Yee	Basque Centre on Cognition,	The neural representation of lexical concepts

		Brain & Language
13.00	Lunch
14.30	Emily Myers	University of Connecticut	(Don't) let data get in the way of a good theory: exploring neural sensitivity to phonetic category structure
15.30	Sara Guediche	Brown University	Lexical and semantic predictions: effects on speech perception and adaptive plasticity
16.00	Coffee/Tea
17.00	Philip Roberts, Henning Retz, Aditi Lahiri	University of Oxford, Goethe Universität Frankfurt	These features are for real: from FUL to automatic speech recognition
19.00	Dinner
August 18, Monday
9.30	Chao Yang Lee	University of Ohio	Processing acoustic variability in lexical tone perception
10.30	Coffee/Tea
11.00	Adam Roberts, Sandra Kotzor, Allison Wetterlin	University of Oxford	Asymmetries in (supra)segmental contrasts
12.00	Pat Keating	University of California, Los Angeles	Commentary
12.30	Lunch
14.00	EXCURSION
